

Four Commercial Bank Teller Machines
Now Speed Service In Orland State Bank

New bank teller's machine at Orland State bank, which eliminates the commercial pass book. Four of these machines are now in use at the bank. At left is George Kott, representative of the National Cash Register Co., builder of the machine. W. R. Schussler, Jr., assistant cashier, is shown at right.

A new type of machine that will mechanize and speed bank deposits was placed in operation this week at the Orland State Bank.

This machine, known as a commercial bank teller's machine, eliminates entirely the time honored, but now unnecessary commercial pass book.

Built by The National Cash Register Company, the machine is designed to give faster service to customers and to increase the efficiency of bank operations. Four of these machines are now in use at the Orland State Bank.

"With this new system tellers can serve customers 20 to 30 percent faster than was possible under former conditions," Mr. Geo. E. Gee, cashier of the bank, reports.

This is brought about principally by the elimination of the pass book and the time formerly required for handwork done by the tellers. Under the pass book system, the customer makes out his deposit slip and tenders it to the teller, who must enter it in the book by hand. With the new system the customer makes out his deposit slip as before, but the teller registers the amount of the deposit on the machine.

An attractive receipt is instantly printed by the machine and is given to the customer. The receipt carries all the information that was formerly shown on the pass book, the date, and the teller's number. In addition, the bank record is produced instantly and simultaneously by the machine and must correspond with the depositors receipt, thus providing complete accuracy for both the customer and the bank.

Special counters and calculating devices on the teller's machine provide statistical information quickly. Within a few moments the bank can get vital information which formerly took considerable time and trouble to accumulate.

"This machine has been described as the answer to a teller's dream," said Mr. George E. Gee, Cashier of the Orland State Bank. "It automatically does the figuring and produces the records formerly done by the teller by hand."

"We know our customer will like the new system, because it greatly reduces the time spent waiting in line. The procedure is now as simple and as fast as buying a ticket at the theater."

In order to handle the additional volume of business, the bank has recently increased the number of its teller windows from three to six. The bookkeeping department has also been moved to the second floor, and now occupies three rooms which were formerly rented.

Contest At Will
County Legion Meet

The Will County American Legion held their regular meeting Jan. 21 at the Lockport township high school library, with Commander Kenneth Oetter presiding. Immediately after the opening ceremonies the meeting was turned over to Vern Dillon, who introduced the contestants for the annual oratorical contest. She is a senior this year.

Oscar C. Russell, of Wilmington, chairman for the 11th district oratorical contest, announced that this contest will be held Feb. 18 at the Batavia Legion hall.

S. Schmieding, of Plainfield, read a bulletin from Lester Benson, service officer for the Illinois Department, regarding the many changes in benefits for returning servicemen serving after Jan. 31, 1955. All veterans returning, or men anticipating entering service in the near future, would do well to contact the Illinois Veterans Commission.

After the meeting, John Olson Post was host to the members, and served a light lunch in the cafeteria. —Floyd N. Leasure, pub.

Dr. Tobey Opens
Optometry Office
In Frankfort

O. M. Tobey who has just announced the opening of his office in Frankfort, graduated from the Northern Illinois College of Optometry in February of 1948, receiving the degree O. D. (Doctor of Optometry). He received his grade school and high school education in Rock Island, Illinois where he was born and raised.

Upon graduating he was assigned to the teaching staff of the optometry department of the college and taught there until February of 1950. At that time he opened his own office in Chicago, for the private practice of optometry.

In October of 1951, he returned to the college to assist on the clinic staff, remaining in that capacity until October of 1953, when he was again assigned to the teaching staff of the Optometry department, a position which he still holds. During this time he has maintained his practice, part time, in Chicago and still has a limited, part time practice there.

He states, "My main reason for locating in this area is that I like it here very much and have a firm belief in its future, and the people that I have met and with whom I've had dealings, have all been very friendly and helpful. Another reason is, that I would like to move my family here. Besides Mrs. Tobey, there are three more of us. We have three daughters, Lynn, 3; Patti, 14; and Phyllis, five months old. I want to get them out into the open air where they can have a yard to play in. We hope to move here just as soon as living quarters are available."

Optometry is defined as: "The science and art of investigating all physiological-optical defects of vision including those of refraction and of the ocular muscle function, and correcting or aiding them by means of lenses, prisms and orthotics (visual training)."

The study of optometry today, requires five years of college study, embracing many subjects allied to the study of optometry. The most important of these allied studies is general and ocular pathology. The optometrist today is responsible for the recognition of any signs of external or internal disease of the eye itself and for the manifestation of any other bodily disease within the eye. When any of these conditions are found he is responsible for referral of these patients to the medical practitioner for treatment. In many cases this must be done before glasses can be prescribed, and should be done before an examination for any visual error is made. In some cases it is necessary to give a temporary prescription until the pathological condition is cleared up by the medical doctor, but in no case will an ethical optometrist prescribe glasses when they are not needed.

Rock Island commuters from stations west of Tinley Park have been interested in watching the buildings being erected there. The project started so long ago, has been at a standstill for the past several months, and the big question now is "Why?"

According to Dr. Otto L. Bettag, director the State Department of Public Welfare, with the exception of the storm water drainage system, the building program has been completed as planned from appropriations for the current biennium.

The present biennium ends June 30, of this year. The department hopes that the next session of the General Assembly will provide sufficient additional funds to continue the program to the point of having operating facilities. At present the Welfare department has plans for additional construction which, when completed, will provide residential and service space for 720 patients.

Band Parents Assn.
Pinocle Party
Enjoyed By Many

The Frankfort Community Band Parents association want to thank every one who attended the pinocle and "another game" party, Jan. 14. Almost every member of the Band Parents, including Lester Heisner, Burnett Schram and Orville Schroeder, worked on the project and were pleased with the outcome. Lovely prizes were awarded the winners; also two other prizes were given. A reproduction of an oil painting by Carl Tobo, a noted artist from Lincoln Estates, was awarded to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Van Rheadan.

The Romper Room with its Puppet show, put on by Lilly Topo and Tammy Trump, games and refreshments, made a tremendous hit with the children.

For the month of February, the Band Parents will hold a demonstration party in the school. The date to be announced later.

During the Park Board Square dance Jan. 29, the following Band Parents will serve on the refreshment committee: Mrs. Art Eisenbrandt, Mrs. Hancock of Lincoln Estates, Mrs. Raymond Smith, Mrs. Orville Schroeder, and Mrs. Lester Heisner.

The proceeds from the sales will go to the Band Parents.

When he first returned home, the special type "rocking bed" permitted him to breathe without the use of the iron lung. Now he no longer needs this mechanical assistance, but the bed remains in his room for use if needed. In addition to this special treatment, Mr. Buck says more than $1500 worth of home equipment has been given them for their son's use during convalescence.

To illustrate how important the National Polio Foundation's services were, here are some expense figures for one month, August 1954, given by Mr. and Mrs. Buck:

Thirty one days in patient care at $21 per day, totaling $651.00. Of this amount Mr. and Mrs. Buck paid $66.34. The Cook County chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis paid $584.66. And the total paid by the Foundation for one year's hospitalization for Paul Buck was $7002.00.

Paul now has the use of his forearms, and enjoys constructing things if this can be done with this much arm movement. While there is definite progress it is slow, and there will continue to be heavy expenses before his ultimate recovery.

There were other cases of polio in this area, aided by the Foundation, but this example should suffice to convince everybody that the March of Dimes deserves their hearty support.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cappel is chair man of the March of Dimes for Mokena, and Mrs. Florence Nelhammer is co-chairman. Chairman of the Mother's March of Dimes is Mrs. Louise Powers. Members of the committee are Mesdames: Ray Westlund, Hans Mueller, Carol Roberts, Wesley Cappel, James Horras, Lloyd Leyerle, John Horras, James Fassett, Robert Peterson, Joe Heim, Edward Walsh, Richard Sippel and Kenneth Corniels.

She holds many memberships in professional societies, boards and committees, both state and national, all dedicated to Child Welfare. Dr. Kehm has written numerous pamphlets and articles for adults and children in professional and popular magazines and in Chicago newspapers. Besides all her professional work, she finds time to be state chairman of Mental Health for the Illinois Congress of PTA.

The Eastern Will county area Council of PTA, is composed of eight units: Beecher, Peotone, Green Garden, Frankfort, Lincoln Estates, Manhattan, Mokena and New Lenox.

The officers for 1954-55 are: Mrs. Burton Breidert, Frankfort president; Mrs. R. B. Stahlberg, Beecher, vice president; and Mrs. George Kaehler, Lincoln Estates, secretary-treasurer.

Each quarterly conference is entitled to two lay representatives on the board of managers. Each church is represented by one layman.

Goodwill Truck

The Goodwill Industries truck will come to Frankfort either Feb. 17 or 18 to pick up articles that persons do not want to keep. Those wanting the truck to call should phone Mrs. Blanche Mitchell, Frankfort 3551 or Mrs. Thomas Williams, Frankfort 2214.

Tonight, Thursday, Jan. 27, is the "Mother's March of Dimes"—the night when every citizen with a heart will turn on the porchlight to indicate to mothers who volunteer their time to a very worthy cause that there is a welcome here, and that a contribution is ready to help humanity in its fight against the dread disease, polio. The Mothers' March of Dimes will start at 7 o'clock in Mokena, and at this hour the fire siren will blow, to make everyone aware of this important occasion.

Polio plays no favorites, and when it strikes it often strikes hard; so hard, in fact, that people of ordinary circumstances are unable to meet the cost of treatment. At such a time the National Polio Foundation is a friend in need. A striking example of how the Foundation has helped out in this area is had in the case of Paul Buck, 11 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Buck, 17816 Hermine, Tinley Park, Mr. and Mrs. Buck have given permission to publish some of the facts concerning his case, so that people in this area will be inclined to remember generously the March of Dimes, and make sure they are ready with their contribution tonight—"Porchlight Night."

Little Paul Buck was hospitalized for a year, and because of the severe type of polio he contracted, it was necessary for him to be in an iron lung part of the time. When he was first stricken he was taken to the University of Illinois Respiratory Center, which is part of the Research Hospital of the University of Illinois. This center was opened up just before Paul was taken there, and he was their first patient. It was found that he was suffering from upper and lower spinal polio. He was confined for three weeks in an iron lung for three months in a chest respirator, and for eight months in a rocking bed.

When he first returned home, the special type "rocking bed" permitted him to breathe without the use of the iron lung. Now he no longer needs this mechanical assistance, but the bed remains in his room for use if needed. In addition to this special treatment, Mr. Buck says more than $1500 worth of home equipment has been given them for their son's use during convalescence.

Rep. John M. King Gets Important Committee Post

Representative John M. King, of Wheaton and Glen Ellyn, has been appointed vice chairman of the House of Representatives industry and labor committee. King, who is serving his third term in the Illinois General Assembly, was also reappointed to the powerful house appropriations committee, giving him three terms of seniority in this important post. Speaker of the House of Representatives, Warren L. Wood, also announced King's appointment to the personnel and pensions committee, as well as the waterways, conservation, fish and game committee.

King, who was the youngest Republican ever elected to the post as State representative, is currently vice president of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, and in this capacity recently returned from an inspection trip of the facilities of Radio Free Europe.

To Open Bids For Road Construction In 34 Counties

The first state road letting under Gov. William G. Stratton's highway program for 1955 will be held at Springfield, Friday, Jan. 28. On that day, bids will be opened on 61 projects in 34 counties totaling $8,500,000. Included in this road work are five separate sections of two additional lanes of 12 foot concrete pavement on U. S. Route 66 between Chenoa and Dwight. This will result in the conversion of 24 1/2 more miles of this route into a four-lane divided expressway. The governor's plan call for 88 miles of U. S. 66 conversion this year.

Room 100 held a recent election of officers for their club. They are: president, Dale Hultsch; vice president, Diane Steinmetz; secretary, Billy Diekmann; and treasurer, Kay Swisher.

Room 302 is working hard to keep their grades up to their ability. Bobby Suhs has been laid up with mumps for the past two weeks.

Those who visited places afar during vacation, report a fine trip with all the interesting places of other states, also many fine souvenirs were brought back to show the classmates.

MAKES REPORT ON DRAINAGE SITUATION

The Governors Committee on metropolitan water and sanitation gave a report of their findings, at a luncheon held in the Illinois Athletic Club in Chicago, Friday, Jan. 14. Their guests were the publishers of the proposed Sanitary district area. Among the 40 persons present at the luncheon were Mrs. Margaret Semmler and Marvin Smith of the Semmler Newspapers; also Frank Jeffords, president of the Tinley Park village board, and trustee Henry Bettenhausen.

Wm. S. Nordburg, trustee of the Sanitary District of Chicago, presented Anthony A. Olis, president of the Sanitary District of Chicago, and member of the Governor's committee. He said that this name, "sanitary district," is a misnomer, because it serves 51 communities in Cook County.

This committee, with their engineers, have made an intensive study of the water, drainage and sanitation of the Cook County area and found that this area is a natural water basin, comprising all of Cook and DuPage counties, the eastern strip of Kane county, and the northern portion of Will county.

Mr. Olis stated that it was the purpose of this committee to help the people solve all problems of water supply, waste disposal, drainage, and rapid development of a port facility, including the widening of the Cal-Sag channel, which must be solved if this metropolitan area is to prosper.

He gave a brief history of the background of this sanitary district, which went back to 1950, when the President of the United States created a water supply commission. Because of the serious problem of diminishing water supply of this area, he suggested that the states and local authorities throughout the counties take steps to organize a supply of water to surrounding communities.

Following the President's suggestion, Gov. Stratton of Illinois took notice of this and also of the lack of water in certain sections and the drought, and as a result he named this committee with Mr. Olis as chairman.

They made a study of the water, drainage, sanitation and navigation situation, and as a result of these studies Gov. Stratton gave his recommendations on this problem in his message to the legislature on Jan. 5, and requested that the legislature give serious study to these reports.

The flood of Oct. 1954 demonstrated, Mr. Olis stated, that the whole area needs a concerted effort to deal with storms and floods, and that these problems must be met on a regional basis.

Now is the time to consider drainage solutions and the committee believes that can only be approached as a whole, as all drains go into the sanitary district. The problem of sewerage and navigation tie in together. The Cal-Sag channel was built to carry affluence down to the river, away from Lake Michigan, which is the source of Chicago's water supply. In order to do this, the Cal-Sag needs to be widened for navigation, as well as for arterial disposal of drainage and sanitary waste, done in such a way that it can continue, which is the purpose originally intended.

There are 51 suburbs now buying water from Chicago. The City of Chicago supplies water to the suburbs and they in turn sell to the local citizens.

Mr. Olis mentioned that the water table in this large area is dropping at the rate of from seven to eight foot per year, and in times of stress, such as during a drought and with a large population growth, a serious problem might suddenly confront us. He said that this plan they have is to cover the next 10 to 20 years, when they figure the growth in the suburbs will increase from 500 to 600 per cent, and 10 to 15 per cent in Chicago, which is an unbalanced ratio. In any event, during the next 30 years, unless something is done now with regard to the supplying of water, this growth is likely to be greatly retarded. This would especially prevent the establishment of industries on the south side of Chicago.

This water supply problem, drainage and sanitation must be handled on a long range program, and this was something that was talked about before 1934 when a Chicago professor wrote an article suggesting just what is being suggested today by this committee of the Governor and the President. Insurance companies have placed Chicago in class 2, some of the suburbs in class 3, Oak Park in class 7, etc. He mentioned that 90 different water systems have been operating in the Chicago area, with more than 1500 officials on it, and so as to avoid duplication this problem in the suburbs, which is not political must be tackled to find a solution.

Mr. Olis stated that this committee had no intention to force anyone into a program they did not want, or "make 'em like it."

It must be studied from the angle of what it would cost and services rendered of an improved nature.

Each session of the legislature have been approached by those seeking to get into some kind of a sanitary system. It seems practical that our source of water supply should be Lake Michigan, for 10 or 20 years from now, at least. Chicago's sanitary system today, can only build to its limits, unless some legal authority is created allowing them to build beyond. It rests with the legislature to provide means for a referendum whereby all citizens in the area may have the opportunity to vote on the issue. Mr. Olis stated he did not think there would be any friction between the city of Chicago and suburbs, because it seems that the suburbs are grateful to Chicago for providing water to them and at less cost than they could furnish it themselves.

Chicago, they stated, has been helpful to the suburban communities, which they are glad to do, but unless these problems are solved they will become more acute as time passes. We lack sufficient drainage of canals now.

Mr. Olis said we must have the spirit of cooperation, and not suspicion, because this is a serious problem. He mentioned that when the St. Lawrence seaway is completed, Chicago will be the biggest seaport in the world, and this area will have a population of between 15 and 20 million people, and with such a waterway this area will have the finest communities in the entire world.

Will County Zoning Ordinance Ruled Valid By Atty. Gen.

State's Attorney Frank H. Masters, Jr., has received an opinion from Attorney General Latham Castle holding the Will County zoning ordinance to be valid and in full force and effect.

State's Attorney Masters had requested the Attorney General's opinion following the recent decision of Circuit Judge Roscoe C. South holding the zoning ordinance inoperative in a case involving property in Manhattan township. Judge South's decision was based on the fact that the zoning maps had not been signed and identified by the County Clerk at the time the ordinance was adopted in 1947.

After Judge South's ruling, the State's Attorney had the maps signed and identified by the County Clerk. Mr. Masters then sought the Attorney General's opinion as to whether such subsequent signing and identification of the zoning maps validated the ordinance.

In his opinion, Attorney General Castle ruled that, (1) the signing and identification of the maps was a mere formal procedure that could be corrected at any time, (2) that State's Attorney Masters may maintain procedures under the Zoning Ordinance for violations occurring prior to such signing and identification, and (3) that all amendments and variations to the Ordinance made prior to the signing and identification are now valid and in full force and effect.

Colleges, Schools and Taxes
Do you hope you will be able to send your children to college sometime between now and 1964? If you expect them to get a sound education, and you to get your money's worth, much must be done. Both teachers' salaries and their efficiency (which is now comparatively low) must be increased.

College Problem Is Serious
Fifty years ago, only about 4% of the youth of college age were able to go to college. Two great events on our national scene boosted enrollments sharply—the depression and the G.I. Bill. Prewar, about 15% of our youth of college age attended such schools. Between 1945-49 a little better than 25% were enrolled. Then, the number shrank during 1950-52. Chiefly responsible for this drop was the fewer number of births in the 1930-35 depression.

But, 1952 saw a 1.5% increase in college enrollments over 1951; and 1953 rose 4.8% over 1952, so that again about 25% of our youth of eligible age were in college. 1954 fall enrollments probably registered a 6% - 8% increase.

Can College Forecasts Be Trusted?
If you project to 1970 the number of children already born, you will have a 16% increase in the youth of college age by 1960, a 46% increase by 1965, and a 70% increase by 1970. And if an increasing percentage of our youth of college age go on to college, enrollments could double by 1970.

The above is based on the assumption that we shall continue to make more educational opportunities available for our youth, as we always have. Educators claim that by 1970 a good third of our young people of college age may enroll. This would mean more than double student bodies, and perhaps require double the number of teachers and much more classroom space. Personally, I believe this is like forecasting 500 for the Industrial Stock Average. I question such figures.

The teacher shortage will not be limited to colleges. Our elementary and secondary schools may need about 140,000 new teachers each year for the foreseeable future. Yet, it is estimated by the experts that only about half the number of teachers needed for the public schools alone will be graduated from college.

But, someone will have to teach your little Johnny and Susie. If adequately trained teachers are not available, persons with substandard qualifications will have to be pressed into service. Now, why is there a teacher shortage? The answer, in part, is that teachers are underpaid.

Salaries Compared
Public-school classroom teachers' salaries averaged about $3,600 for 1953-54. This is less than many business and engineering college graduates got as a starting salary on their first jobs a year or so ago. And 1953-54 was a good year for the teachers too, for it represented an average salary rise of 4.8% over the previous year.

Still, 14.1% of the 1,028,899 teachers received less than $2,500, and only 14% received $4,500 or more. College teachers' salaries go very little higher. The median income of physicians, on the other hand, was about $11,200; lawyers, $7,750; dentists, $7,100; but with much higher top figures attainable. How can we hope to hold good men in top educational jobs which pay $5,000 - $8,500 when their counterparts in industry offer ceilings unlimited?

Taxes Should Not Be Raised
If we want capable teachers, we shall have to pay wages competitive enough to encourage them to make the tremendous outlay of time and expense needed for their education. To hold our able teachers, we shall have to up salaries. This means higher taxes.

I forecast that our democratic society, with full employment, can prosper only as we provide adequate schooling for your child, with a moderate tax rate. This means that our educational leaders must provide far more efficient methods of learning by doubling the use of present facilities. What industry could survive in this competitive era with its factories being used only six hours per day?

The peak of modern coal handling seems to have been reached at one of the world's largest coal cleaning plants, near Cadiz, O., where only five men control cleaning and processing of 1,500 tons of bituminous coal every hour. One man can load five 70-ton capacity railroad cars simultaneously.

Washington News

What Is Coexistence?
Perhaps the best definition of the word coexistence is, "Living at peace with each other." Coexistence is based upon cooperation. It takes two to coexist.

Most individuals live at peace with each other when married, although they may differ at times with each other on various matters. However, if one member of the family team refuses to cooperate, there can be no coexistence, and the result is separation.

Today different countries coexist - such as Canada and the United States - although they have different laws, a different money system, a different government organization, and a very different historical background. Countries must cooperate if they want to coexist.

Neither Communist Russia nor Communist China has ever exhibited any desire to cooperate with free peoples. Neither one has ever kept her word when solemnly given in a signed treaty. Communist Russia insists upon converting the world to Communism. Such a program inevitably must end in conflict.

When President Roosevelt recognized Soviet Russia in 1934 as a member in good standing in the family of nations, Stalin pledged to refrain from spreading Communist propaganda in the United States; he pledged to abstain from all further effort to undermine our democratic form of Government. He did not keep his solemn promise. Can we expect Malenkov to keep faith any better than Stalin did?

Stalin's belief was, "The Soviet State finds lying very necessary and useful in its foreign policy." What about Malenkov's belief?

Can Atheism and Christianity coexist? That means, can they cooperate? Atheism rests upon a materialistic concept of life; Christianity rests upon a spiritualistic concept of life - man as a child of God, a creature with a soul.

Can Dictatorship and Democracy coexist? The one rests upon the theory that the State is all important; the other rests upon the theory that the individual is all important.

Can direct opposites coexist or cooperate?
False Coexistence vs. True Coexistence.

Coexistence, as preached today by each of the two world armed camps, is a "coexistence of fear," fear of each other's military and economic power.

Pope Pius XII expressed it by saying, in substance: The coexistence advocated today is a coexistence based upon fear and error - fear of military power, error because dependent upon economic success. Coexistence to be successful must be based upon fear of God and dependent upon God's Truth.

Can there be coexistence between Atheistic Communism and Christian Nations?
Our Foreign Policy—Appeasement, Containment, Coexistence

"Peace in our time" was Prime Minister Chamberlain's slogan. Our American foreign policy was adjusted to that slogan. It failed.

"Appeasement" was the order at Yalta, Teheran, and Cairo under the leadership of Franklin D. Roosevelt. It failed.

"Containment" was Harry Truman's program for dealing with Communism. It failed.

Now it is "Coexistence" under President Eisenhower. Will it also fail? Will coexistence prove any more effective than appeasement or containment?

As a result of F. D. R.'s appeasement policy and Harry Truman's containment program, Russia expanded from a dictatorship of 300 million Russians to a dictatorship of 900 million people. Russia today needs time to digest and consolidate what she has swallowed in the past 10 years, and time to perfect her war machine. Russia now proposes to coexist with the Western World, providing we stop re-arming Europe, abandon N.A.T.O., recognize Communist China as a member of the United Nations, and stop Joe McCarthy from rooting out Communists from our Federal government.

Dare we try coexistence on Russian terms? An old proverb says: He who cooperates with the Devil will be carried off by the Devil.

RADIOACTIVE FALL-OUT FROM A AND H BOMBS

Incident to the 1954 H-bomb tests in the Pacific, increased attention has been directed to the danger of radioactive fall-out from A and H bombs. The Illinois Office of Civil Defense supplied the following valuable information:

Radioactive fall-out has taken on a mysterious aspect, because it is invisible and cannot be seen or felt or smelled. It cannot be detected by any of the five senses. Its detection can be made only by special instruments. The circles of destruction by heat and blast are predictable, whereas the effects of the fall-out are not.

In the current planning in Civil Defense in Illinois, based on F.C.D.A. directions, the following pattern of airborne attacks are assumed to be the most likely. This pattern provides a common basis of Civil Defense planning throughout the state.

Chicago 1000X High Burst
St. Louis 1000X Low Burst
Peoria 5X High Burst
Decatur 2X High Burst
Springfield 2X High Burst
Rockford 2X High Burst
Rock Island 8X High Burst

Consequently, under these assumptions, the only dangerous radioactive fall-out in Illinois will occur from the St. Louis attack. This will affect the adjacent counties in Illinois.

The possibility of bombing errors and that bombers driven off defended targets, may drop their bombs elsewhere, requires an appreciation of the danger in all rural areas of Illinois.

It may be expected, in the future, that A - H bombs will be detonated below the optimum altitude for maximum blast, fire, initial radiation and damage. This low burst will better provide for the escape of the attacking plane and crew. The reduction in the devastated area of an attacked city, resulting from low burst, will still be large enough to destroy one-half to all of the attacked city.

If either an H or A bomb is detonated low enough (close enough to the ground), the fire and ball will touch the ground and will pick up a great amount of dust and debris, all of which has been made radioactive by the explosion. This mass of material will rise rapidly in a vertical direction and then be carried downwind. Eventually much of it will fall to the ground.

A special case may arise if the air is moist. In this event, the radioactive material would attach itself to rain drops, which might subsequently fall as radioactive rain.

Radioactivity dropped on the ground from a rain cloud or from water descending from the up-cast of an underwater burst will usually be dissipated after a period of twenty-four hours.

Peotone Farmer Increases Yield 61.3 Bu. Per Acre

Louis Kooiman, of Peotone, won second prize in a contest conducted among users of Schrock plant food materials, with a yield increase of 61.3 bushels per acre. Mr. Kooiman applied 100 pounds of anhydrous ammonia per acre. The yield on the fertilized portion was 82.5 bushels per acre, and the yield where no ammonia was applied was 21.2 bushels per acre, an increase of 61.3 bushels per acre. Mr. Kooiman realized an extra profit, over cost of the ammonia and its application, of $73.82 per acre.

He will receive as second prize 1000 pounds of Schrock Anhydrous Ammonia which is applied at the rate of 100 pounds per acre on 10 acres. Yields were taken throughout the grain belt this year, in cooperation with local dealers. All yields were witnessed by a disinterested party.

An increase of 150 per cent in coal consumption by the electric utility industry is foreseen by 1970, even after allowances for increased efficiency of use. In 1920, for instance, it took three pounds of coal to produce one kilowatt of electricity; today one of 20% lindane concentrate in ly one pound, or less, is required to do the same job, but 1954 coal consumption approached a record 117,000,000 tons.

To fight lice or mange in cattle and hogs apply a lindane spray made by mixing two quarts of 20% lindane concentrate in 100 gallons of water; use up to two gallons of the finished spray on each animal and make two applications two weeks apart.

L-W Parent-Teacher Group To Meet Feb. 2

The regular monthly meeting of the Lincoln-Way Parent Teacher group will be held next Wednesday, Feb. 2 in the school cafeteria. The program committee of which Mrs. Louise Powers, Mokena, is chairman, is preparing a program in cooperation with its faculty member, Earl Dieken which promises to be an interesting one.

Mrs. Herbert Folker, Frankfort, president, urges every parent of the students to make a special effort to attend these parent group meetings. Chairman Mrs. Edna Clark, Mokena, of the membership committee, as well as all her committee members, concur in this wish so that her committee can enroll as many members as possible.

It's just as well that we do not have the eyes of the prophet, because there is always the excitement and speculation to urge us onward.

There's no subject as fascinating as the future, whether it be tomorrow, the next day, or next year. Where do we go from here, in this era of atomic power?

In addition to the financial report given below, they would like to acknowledge the following donations: Orval Schroeder and H. S. Obryan for painting the bleachers; Donald Carroll, labor bill of $66 for wiring of the buildings; Wayne Print Shop $10 bill for printing of tickets and ad for Fish Fry; the Lions club for their efforts towards putting up the lights and all others who donated time or services in any way.

Also a word of appreciation to the park board members who served during the past year.

Big Publisher Of Comic Books Makes 'Pledge To Parents'

The Dell Publishing company, the nation's largest single comic book publisher, selling upwards of 25,000,000 copies per month, and representing over 40% of the industry's total sales, announced for 1955 an extensive "Pledge to Parents" campaign.

Beginning in March of this year, the new pledge will be carried on each of the 300,000,000 copies of Dell Comics sold yearly. The pledge reads: "The Dell trademark, is, and always has been, a positive guarantee that the comic magazine bearing it contains only clean and wholesome juvenile entertainment. The Dell code eliminates entirely, rather than regulates, objectionable material.

George T. Delacorte, Jr., president of the firm, in making the announcement said, "It is high time, now that the national spotlight has been on the bad side of the comic book industry, that recognition be given to the far more encouraging and telling good side of the story. American parents can take great pride in the good taste that their children have long shown."

Delacorte pointed out that children's marked preference for good comics is clearly shown in the fact that 11 of the top leading 25 magazines on the newsstands of the U. S. A. (all kinds including Life, The Saturday Evening Post, etc.) bear the Dell Comics trademark. Some of the titles are: Walt Disney's Comics, Warner Brothers' Bugs Bunny, Walt Disney's Mickey Mouse, Warner Brothers' Looney Tunes and Merrie Melodies, Porky Pig, Walter Lantz' Woody Woodpecker, and Marge's Little Lulu. Heading this star list is America's largest selling single magazine on the newsstands, Walt Disney's Donald Duck.

Economic Highlights

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual

National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare

The basic tenet of Communism, which Marx argued and developed in elaborate detail in Das Kapital, is that capitalism exploits the masses for the benefit of the few, and that increasing industrialization under capitalism would inevitably lead to more exploitation coupled with a steady decline in living standards. In Marx's view, the end result would be revolutions in all the capitalist countries, with maddened workers throwing off their chains and turning on their oppressors.

The exploitation theory, of course, is still one of the big talking points of the Communists, just as it was at the time of the Russian revolution. It is repeated ad infinitum, ad nauseum in the Soviet press and on the Soviet radio. The prime target and example is always the United States.

It is interesting to examine this in the light of an article by Gilbert Burck in the January issue of Fortune magazine. Mr. Burck's article is part of a series Fortune calls "The New Economy." It begins with these words: "The supreme economic story of the past 25 years can be reduced to one simple, colossal fact: today the average American, though he works about 15 per cent fewer hours, has roughly 50 per cent more purchasing power than he had a quarter-century ago. This remarkable advance in material welfare is almost entirely a result of the fact that national productivity, which may be defined as average out-put per man-hour, has shown an average annual increase, since 1930, of more than two per cent a year."

In other words, we have had more industrialization, more mechanization of work in all fields -- yet instead of dropping, our living standards have soared. And no one thinks we have come to the end of the trail. Mr. Burck reports that many conservative economists "believe the U. S. economy in the past few years has broken through some barriers" and the annual rate of advance in productivity is moving toward a minimum of 2.5 per cent. If that occurs for the next 25 years, he continues, "the annual cash income of the average American family unit in 1980, after taxes, will probably come close to $6,600, in 1953 dollars. What is more, this figure makes allowance for a decrease in working hours."

Some of the greatest tributes to the American system, of production have come from members of foreign productivity teams which have visited here in late years. Fortune quotes a number of their comments. One said, "Management and labor feel a far greater sense of responsibility to the public here than in Germany." Another said, "The speed and growth of mechanization manifestly have not resulted in setting a pace that kills... they have increased... health, welfare, and longevity more rapidly than in any other country." Another said, "In Europe the majority of people have an inferiority complex; in America they help one another wherever they can." And still another said that in this country "productivity is a state of mind... It is the willingness not to be content with the present situation, however good it may be... It is faith in human progress."

Without arguing the pros and cons of Marx' theories, it seems evident that he was one of the world's worst forecasters so far as matters of fact are concerned.

Milk Production Decreasing In Chicago Market

Dairy farmers will receive $3.54 a hundredweight for milk which they delivered to the Chicago market during December. This is the uniform "blend" price for the milk which is delivered in the 70-mile zone radius in Chicago.

Harry Edwards, head of the sales department of the Pure Milk Association said that the price is 16 cents lower than the November price and 14 cents below December of 1953.

The blend price of milk is computed every month by the Milk Market Administrator's office in Chicago.

Edwards noted that a trend is starting in the Chicago market. Compared with a year previous, milk production decreased by 5 million pounds in November and by 15 million pounds in December.

The reason for the decrease in milk is the decline in the number of dairymen on the market. 1000 fewer dairy farms are shipping in the Chicago market now than one year ago. Edwards, who

Taken from Medford, Mass., Mercury: "Add two more R's to the traditional three of reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic to round out today's education. To their credit and glory, 16 and 17-year-olds on the New York Times Youth Forum named the two R's as responsibility and religion. The true goal of education, according to these amazing youngsters, is to make people Americans and make them aware of their land and its opportunities. And yet there are people who despair of this generation!"
